

Informed decisions on total fleet risk and control

If you are not totally in control of your risks and costs, within your fleet, grey fleet related operations and supply-chain, your business will be missing an opportunity to improve your bottom line. Using a systematic process for managing your risks and related costs will facilitate improvements across the board.

We have therefore joined with Sprint Telematics and their partners to offer a unique enterprise-wide fleet risk management service that can be used for a corporate review, a site by site assessment, a supply-chain partner audit and to identify your total vehicle, asset and mobile/lone worker tracking requirements.

Why?

You need to have accurate management information to help you make the right informed decisions about what to do. Your objective must be to gain control of and reduce your total risks and costs to protect your business, employees and supply chain. The ability to prove to all stakeholders and regulators that 'you are in control' is increasingly important.

Challenges

- ✓ Does your business struggle to understand the 'big picture' of your total risk and cost exposures?
- ✓ Are your existing management systems not working effectively, not joined-up or do not cover your total fleet & related operations?
- ✓ Do you know your risk and cost exposures within these risk areas – vehicles, drivers, sites, loads, journey, environment, management systems, organisational aspects and supply-chain?
- ✓ Are initiatives managed by different functions within your business – logistics, fleet, operations, HR, legal, insurance, finance, H&S etc?
- ✓ Do you pull these initiatives into a coordinated risk & cost reduction plan and ongoing management system, or are they un-coordinated and less effective as a result?
